

I would like to say good morning to our respected Principal, my teachers and colleagues. Today we are celebrating 73rd republic day of our nation. It was started celebrating since 1950, two and half years later to the Independence of India in 1947.

The Indian Constitution came into effect on the 26th of January 1950. It was a very important day for us in that it meant we were finally free from the British rule and become our own country again, but also as India became independent from English rule. India became a self-goyeming country when its constitution came into effect in 1950.